

FIND FIFTEEN DEAD AT CLEVELAND, O.

MORE VICTIMS OF THE TROLLEY CAR DISASTER.

Four Are Still Missing, and Will Probably Be Discovered in the Wreck—Agonizing Scenes as the Dead Are Brought to View—Search Kept Up All Night.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 18.—The people of this city are appalled when they realize the full horror of the accident which occurred Saturday evening on the big Central viaduct. It was the worst disaster that ever happened in this city, and the story of how the motor car, loaded with men, women and children, had plunged through the open draw straight down a hundred feet into the river was told over and over again. Thousands of people remained by the river banks all last night, and thousands more were there early in the morning. The first reports of the disaster have been verified in every particular, with the possible exception of the number of victims, which is a trifle smaller than at first supposed. The work of rescuing the bodies has gone on steadily since 9 o'clock Saturday evening, and it is now believed that nothing more can be done until the last bit of the wreckage of the car has been removed from the river. Latest list of killed:

JAMES M'LAUGHLIN, baseball player, No. 77 Trowbridge avenue.
HENRY W. MECKLENBURG, merchant tailor, No. 53 Mary street.

HARRY W. FOSTER, clerk for Root & McBride Company, No. 51 Mentor avenue.

MRS. MINNIE C. BROWN, No. 10 Thurman street.

CURT LEPHNE, No. 66 Jennings avenue.

MRS. A. W. HOFFMAN, 30 years old, No. 1508 Pearl street.

HARVEY HOFFMAN, 7 years old, No. 1508 Pearl street.

MRS. MARTHA PALMER, No. 165 Kenilworth avenue.

LOUIS F. HULETZ, mail carrier, No. 38 Brevier street.

Names of the missing:

Miss Martha Sauerheimer, No. 151 Merchants' avenue.

Looney, 9 years old, No. 37½ Clifton street.

B. C. Page, residence unknown.

Matthew Callahan, Hamilton street.

The number of victims was increased to fifteen by the discovery of two more bodies in the river. All of the dead have been identified. Four persons, who were supposed to have been on the ill-fated car, are still missing, and there seems no doubt that their bodies will be taken from the bottom of the river when the heavy iron trucks of the wrecked motor are raised.

The scenes about the river late Saturday night while the work of rescue was being prosecuted were pathetic in the extreme. The thousands of people who had assembled waited with bated breath for the discovery of bodies. It was a sad crowd, and out of respect for the unfortunate dead but very little noise was made. Occasionally the wild scream of some frantic woman who believed some one dear to her was among the unfortunate ones would echo over the flats, only to be taken up at a distance by some other woman whose heart was breaking over her loss. It was almost impossible to get to the river. Patrol wagons dashed this way and that, their bells clanging, adding to the din and confusion. Ambulances dashed up to the scene, only to turn and drive away again, carrying the remains of other unfortunates. It was almost impossible to work with any system. The crowd pushed its way as near the scene as possible, and the effects of the large force of police to maintain order were almost in vain. It was with great difficulty that a body, when recovered, was taken to one of the dead wagons. Four bodies were found almost at the same time. They were placed on stretchers, and the solemn march to the ambulances started.

As the bodies were passed from the fireboat to the willing hands on shore, an aisle was made and the bodies passed along. Every few feet some woman would step out from the crowd, peer into the face of a body as it passed, and "It's not him, thank God," she would say. And so the procession moved on.

All the time the search was going on, cars kept running over the viaduct. Both rails from the west to the east approach of the bridge were blocked with people. In the center of the bridge men, women and children went this way and that, screaming, jostling each other, women tearing their hair and calling upon God to save their dear ones. Women fainted and were trampled on by the mad, rushing and insane crowd. It was impossible to keep any kind of order and the effort was finally abandoned.

It was a crowd with a common grief. Not one of the multitude but knew that perhaps a brother, mother, father, or sister was at the moment lying cold in death at the bottom of the river. Everybody tried to sympathize with everybody else, and, as a result, it was hard to distinguish any one.

From the dizzy heights the thousands of people who occupied positions on the bridge itself watched the proceedings below. Their view was unobstructed and they saw everything that took place. The second body was brought to the surface, those on the bridge reported to those in the center of the bridge, and then a rush to the rail was made by the excited crowds.

The diver succeeded last evening in fastening a chain to the trucks of the motor, and they were raised from the river. The bed of the stream was then dragged, but no more bodies were found. Two persons are still missing, however, and it is probable their bodies have floated down the river. The search was given up last night and all the wreckage removed from the scene of the accident. Arrangements have been made for the funerals of the victims, nearly all of which will occur Tuesday. The people on the South Side, where most of the victims lived, suffered the greatest shock. Yesterday the regular services at Pilgrim Congregational church, the largest in that section of the city, were abandoned, and the remarks of the pastor were devoted to the calamity. In the afternoon a largely attended meeting of citizens were held at the same church, at which resolutions were adopted, expressing sympathy with the families of the victims and calling upon the city council to take immediate steps to guard against accidents on all the city bridges.

AN IMMENSE STRIKE.

Forty Thousand Men Will Go Out in New York.

New York, Nov. 18.—A building strike which looks now as though it would involve ten or twelve thousand men, but which may involve nearly forty thousand men, began at 8 a. m. today. If it becomes as bad as threatened it will be the largest building strike which ever took place in this country. The board of walking delegates of the building trades, which controls 60,000 building workmen, has pledged its assistance to the housewives, and will order sympathetic strikes on the big buildings in the city where iron work is being put in. Meantime the State Board of Arbitrators and Mediators has made every effort to settle the differences existing without avail. It will meet at the Murray Hill Hotel today for further consultation with the board of walking delegates.

Spring Valley Rioters Sentenced.

Princeton, Ill., Nov. 18.—The Spring Valley riot case came to an end Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, when the jury, which had been out all night, returned a sealed verdict in open court. They found the thirteen men, John Lauer, brother of the ex-mayor, Peter Lauer; Peter Marietta, John Tista, John Rochie, John Bartoleo, Dominic Bartono, Louis Bosetti, Joe Schneider, Joe Lemor, Peter Budvit, John Quimby, Jean Brault and Paul Yerley, guilty of driving certain colored people from their homes at Spring Valley on Aug. 4 last. The maximum penalty under the law is five years in the penitentiary, and the jury sentenced them to that institution, but did not fix the time each one should serve within the limit.

Cincinnati Brewery Burns.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 18.—Early yesterday morning the Banner brewery, Canal and Walnut streets, was burned, at a loss of $175,000. The loss of the Varwig Faucet and Beer Pump works was $15,000 and of the Cincinnati Tin Stamping company $10,000. Fireman Sweeney was injured by the copper cornice falling on his head. The Banner brewery was in the hands of Receivers Darnsont and Huesman and was recently appraised at $300,000.

France Makes a Grab.

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—The brigantine Galilee, from the Society Islands, brings news that the French troops have been ordered to fire on the natives, who claim one-half of the island of Raiatea. The Duquesne and Via, stationed at Pee Peete, will carry the soldiers to Raiatea. This will probably end the troubles that have been worrying the French people for many years. Half of the island has been claimed by the French and half by the natives ever since the protectorate was made forty years ago.

Will Address the Georgia Legislature.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Secretary Hoke Smith has accepted the invitation of the Georgia legislature to address that body on the issues of the day. He will leave Washington for Atlanta Tuesday and will speak on the evening of Wednesday or Thursday. Secretary Smith will take a pronounced stand against the unlimited free coinage of silver and declare his adherence to the sound-money policy he has heretofore advocated.

SULTAN IS EXCUSED BY A NEWSPAPER

SENSATIONAL ARTICLE IN A LONDON JOURNAL.

Great Britain Not in Favor of a Naval Demonstration or Any Other Movement That Would Tend to Coerce the Turkish Government—Think Peaceable Plan Will Win.

London, Nov. 18.—Sir Philip Currie, British ambassador to Turkey, who has been in England during the last month in consultation with Lord Salisbury in reference to the troubles between the Turks and Armenians, started this morning for Constantinople, via Vienna. His journey back to Turkey will be made as quickly as possible, and he will resume his post at Constantinople without loss of time.

It is evident that important decisions have been arrived at regarding Eastern affairs, since the Morning Post publishes an article, evidently inspired by the foreign office. The article is understood to indicate that the prime minister has decided that the utmost effort must be made to maintain the integrity of the Turkish empire, therefore, efforts must, in the first place, be directed to restoring order in the disturbed districts. Continuing, the article says: "For the moment all thought of coercing the sultan should be laid aside. He has already given evidence of a desire to introduce reforms. It cannot be doubted that he will defer to the wishes of the powers as soon as circumstances permit him to do so. It is difficult to apportion the blame justly between the Turks and the Christians. It is believed on good authority that the disorders are partly due to the careless orders of the sultan, who commanded the provincial governors not to molest the Armenians while they were quiet, but if they revolted to exterminate them. This order has been interpreted with much generosity by the Turks, while the Armenians themselves are blameable, to some extent, for fomenting disorders. At the present moment any naval demonstration in Turkish waters or undue pressure on the Turkish government can only precipitate a crisis from which Turkey's friends can hope to gain nothing and her enemies everything."

The article concludes by expressing the hope that the ambassadors will be able to place more confidence in his ministers, and that he can be induced to abandon his personal government, but adds that Sir Philip Currie and his colleagues must remember that they are not only apostles of humanity, but also guardians of peace.

Hon. Francis Seymour Stevenson, M. P., president of the Anglo-Armenian association, in an interview, says: "The sultan has lately developed symptoms of a monomania hardly distinguishable from insanity, and it is not unlikely that he will meet with the same fate that overtook his brother, Murad, the former sultan, and thus simplify the task of Europe."

The money market is righting itself. The run on the Ottoman Bank affected none of its thirty-four branches, excepting the branch bank at Beyrut, where slight trouble was reported.

It is officially announced that an Armenian disguised as an Arab was arrested at Orfah bringing a letter from the Bishop of Aleppo to the Armenian Bishop at Orfah, asking him to send gunpowder and saltpeper to Zeitoun to aid the insurgents, adding: "Balaon of Zeitoun will organize an army. The Armenians of Marash are ready and eager for the fray."

A correspondent at Constantinople learns that the constitutional party professes no personal animus against the sultan and complains against him only on account of his odious misgovernment. The constitutional party should not be confounded with the Young Turks party. The members of the constitutional party say that they desire only rational government by peaceful means. They have never cared for vengeance, or for bloodshed.

French official reports insist that there are at least 5,000 victims as a result of the three days' massacre at Sivas.

It is noteworthy that the wave of the Turkish violence is now sweeping westward. The idea prevails that when the inhabitants of the Zeitoun district have been wiped out, the massacre will temporarily cease, leaving for winter and famine the complete extermination of the Armenians. The campaign against the Young Turks at Constantinople continues. Thirty-six more of the members of the Young Turks party have been drowned off Kalki Island.

Representatives of the different governments at the Moosh consulate report a small loss of life during the recent riots there. The governor exposed his own life in order to stop the fighting, while the better class of the Moslems sheltered the Armenians in the various mosques.

The various Turkish papers publish fresh appeals, urging upon the people the necessity of abstaining from all acts of violence.

A Constantinople dispatch says that the Armenian missionaries at Bitlis have wired the English and American representatives asking that the government provide an escort to Van for them, and for their families. This corresponding makes the astounding announcement that fully 20,000 Armenians have been killed during the recent massacre.

A COLORED BRUTE HANGED AND SHOT

NEGRO LYNCHED AT FREDERICK, MARYLAND.

Prison Doors Forced with Sledges and Crowbars in Quick Order—The Victim Identified as the Assailant of Lillie Jones, a White Woman—Sheriff and Deputies Powerless.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 18.—James Goings, who assaulted Miss Lillie Jones at the home of Hamilton Geisbert, near this city, Saturday night, was taken from the jail by a mob of 300 men and hanged to a tree in a field on the Jefferson turnpike, one mile from the city.

A report reached the city that the woman had died from the cuts and beating inflicted by the negro, and this infuriated the men, who had been gathering in the streets and discussing the outrage. A mob was quickly gotten together and, unmasked, but armed with revolvers, the men marched to the jail. They had previously broken into a machine shop in the neighborhood of the jail and secured sledges, crowbars and files. They made at once for the door on the west wing of the jail and began to batter upon it.

Fully twenty shots were fired from the windows above by Sheriff A. H. Zimmerman and his deputies, but the mob paid no attention to them and went on with their work. The jail bell was rung to summon assistance, but none came.

In twenty minutes the large door panels gave way under the heavy blows and the mob burst into the corridor. They quickly overcame the slight resistance the officers on the inside were able to offer and found the cell in which Goings, cowering and crying, was confined. He was led out amid the howls of the crowd, the rope placed around him and he was hurried down the road to his place of doom. He protested his innocence as they dragged him along, and begged the mob not to kill him. He was promptly recognized by a number of men who knew him, and the mob did not hesitate in its work.

Goings' feet and hands were tied and the rope was drawn around his neck. A man seized the other end of it, climbed the tree and threw the cord over a limb.

"Let him go," was shouted, and quick as a flash he was jerked from his feet and hung dangling in the air six feet from the ground. One shot was fired into his body, and in a few minutes he was dead.

The mob during the process of lynching observed order; none were allowed to fire at him except one.

A member of the mob made a brief speech, in which he said that they were there with the unfortunate wretch, not in a spirit of malice, but to make an example of him, and teach his race that they must let the women of Frederick county alone.

The assault for which Goings suffered death was a cruel and dastardly one. Miss Jones has thirteen cuts and stab wounds on her body where he hacked at her with a knife and razor. She says he asked her for something to eat, and when she gave it to him, he said:

"I will give you a dollar." She screamed and ran fifty feet down the garden, where he overtook her, knocking her down, and cut her, also crushing her nose.

The field in which the negro was lynched is the same spot the negro Bigus was lynched on in November, 1887.

NO SOFT COAL COMBINE.

Indiana Mine Operators Deny a Widely Spread Report.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 18.—Indiana coal operators say there is nothing in the report sent out from New York that the Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania operators will follow the example of the Maryland and West Virginia operators and form a pool like the one in the anthracite field. As a matter of fact, there is no hope now of the projected inter-state conference next month to fix the wage scale for the year beginning January.

When the settlement was reached in July, it was with the understanding that there should be a conference at Pittsburg in December, but the word from the western Pennsylvania operators is that they will fix their own terms regardless of the conditions in other states. The Indiana mines never were busier, and there is a demand for more miners.

It Looks Like Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 18.—The Dispatch says that Robert Lindsay, ex-secretary of the National League of Republican Clubs, has received a letter from General James S. Clarkson, in which he instructs Mr. Lindsay to engage a number of rooms at leading Pittsburg hotels for the national convention week. The letter does not contain the proviso "if the convention be held in Pittsburg," but positively engages the rooms.

Rush for Homes Has Begun.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 18.—Today the rush for land on the Nez Perces reservation will be made. The boundaries of the reserve are lined with people ready to make a dash for the land, while some have gone so far as to squat right on the reservation, determined to hold the ground at all hazards. The action of "sooners" will doubtless cause much trouble.

A DESPERATE FIGHT.

West Virginia Convict Kills an Officer of the Law and Escapes.

Wileyville, W. Va., Nov. 18.—One officer was killed, one fatally and a third seriously hurt here yesterday afternoon in a battle with an escaped convict. The dead:

FURBEE, NEWTON.

The injured: Baird, James; fatally shot. Hibbs, severely wounded.

Last summer White was arrested and convicted of robbing freight cars at Hundred, on the Baltimore and Ohio road. In August he escaped from the county jail at New Martinsville. Since that time the officers have been looking for him. Yesterday Constable Newton Forbes learned that White had been seen about Wileyville. He went after his man, but when he attempted to make the arrest White whipped out a revolver and brought down the constable at the first shot. He died almost instantly. James Baird and Hibbs attempted with the others to overpower the murderer. White, who was now thoroughly aroused, pumped cold lead into them without hesitation, bringing down Hibbs with a wound in the stomach, from which he will likely not recover, and catching Baird in the leg. This intimidated the others and he made his escape. It is reported that a posse has been organized and is now after the murderer.

BOND ISSUE RUMORS.

Secretary Carlisle's Denial Not Generally Believed.

Washington, Nov. 18.—There are renewed rumors that the secretary of the treasury is contemplating another issue of bonds. Treasury officials deny it, but there is no one to vouch for the accuracy of the denial. Secretary Carlisle himself the day before the bond issue was ordered stated to a representative of the press that no such measure was in contemplation. A gentleman who is entitled to full credence says he has been advised that, in considering the financial situation the secretary of the treasury has given attention to the subject of another bond issue. It has been deemed unlikely, however, that the administration would venture upon a bond issue within two weeks of the meeting of the Republican house of representatives. Some friends of the administration say also that Secretary Carlisle is now considering the expediency of a plan, which he once rejected, of obtaining authority from congress to issue temporary certificates of indebtedness to protect the treasury and the gold reserve and to meet any unusual temporary demands.

Killed in a Boiler Explosion.

Vanceburg, Ky., Nov. 18.—Twenty miles south of here, near the head of Grassy, a large boiler at the mill of George W. Stamper, Jr., of this city, exploded, killing two men instantly, and seriously if not fatally injuring several others.

The dead: KIDWELL, CECIL, engineer; body carried 100 yards and horribly mangled. PRICE, WASH.; instantly killed.

The injured: Edwin, John; fatally.

Six other persons, names unknown; all badly scalded.

The mill was a saw and grist mill combined and on Saturdays large numbers of people are always present.

Revolutionists to Issue Bonds.

New York, Nov. 18.—The Cuban junta is getting ready to issue $30,000,000 of bonds, at 6 per cent, which it proposes to pay "as soon after the war terminates as possible." The issue is to be placed in charge of a committee, at the head of which is to be an expert financier, who has just arrived from Europe. The only security to be given for the loan is the island of Cuba itself, but as Senator Tomas Estrada Palma, the Cuban minister plenipotentiary, said, the Cubans are sure of success this time, and there need be no apprehension as to the value of the security.

Freight Train Breaks in Two.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 18.—A freight train on the Southern railway parted while ascending Alto hill, sixty miles west of Birmingham, yesterday, and two cars and a caboose, with Conductor Ruffin aboard, made a mad race of six miles down the hill. At Patton Junction the runaway train ran into the Corona accommodation, which was backing into a "Y." Ruffin was instantly killed while trying to stop the wild train's progress. Passengers on the accommodation were badly shaken up.

Steals on a Salary of $5 a Week.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 18.—Henry Bolzer, bookkeeper and collector for the Central Carriage and Wagon company, was arrested Saturday night on the charge of embezzlement. Frank Ender and George Mitsch, proprietors of the Central Wagon and Carriage company, say Bolzer was short over $100 in his accounts. Bolzer doesn't deny his shortage, but says he was unable to support his wife and four children on $5 per week, which he receives for his services.

Gen. Jordan Dying.

New York, Nov. 18.—General Thomas Jordan, the ex-Confederate general, who is lying at the point of death at his home, was said to be sinking fast at midnight last night, and it was not expected that he would live many hours longer.

TO BUILD A BIG MILL AT SAULT STE. MARIE

IT WILL BE THE LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

Drexel, Morgan & Co. Are the Projectors of the Scheme, Which Is Said To Be an Absolute Certainty—Populist Convention Very Likely To Be Held at Milwaukee.

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 18.—Within a short time the largest paper mill in the world will be erected at Sault Ste. Marie. Drexel, Morgan & Co. are the backers of the new company, of which the Cramps, the Philadelphia ship-builders, are the leading stockholders. The company, which already has a mill on the Canadian side, has purchased the water power rights on the American side for $2,500,000, with the added condition that within five years there shall be constructed on the American side a grain elevator of 4,000,000 bushels capacity and a flouring mill with a capacity of 10,000 barrels per day.

Chairman Taubeneck Talks Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 18.—The Populist national convention will probably be held in this city. Chairman Taubeneck, of the national committee, was here yesterday and said that Milwaukee was the only city which has taken any active measures to secure the convention. He claims that the Populists will poll 5,000,000 votes in the next national election. The local Populists have secured $2,000 of the $5,000 it is necessary for them to raise in order to secure the convention.

THE VENEZUELA BOUNDARY.

Foreign Consuls in British Guiana Interviewed on the Subject.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Information reaching here from Demerara, British Guiana, is to the effect that further dispatches of a very pointed character have been received from Joseph Chamberlain, British minister for the colonies, concerning Venezuela. Their contents were not disclosed, but a meeting of the high council of the colony was called, at which it was believed the subject would be fully discussed. The report in circulation at Demerara and generally credited is that Minister Chamberlain has forwarded dispatches to the British Guiana government, in which he inquires whether or not in the event of measures between that colony and Venezuela being pushed to extremes the colonial government is prepared to do its utmost in an endeavor to sustain the prestige of the British flag, to which it owes allegiance.

Commenting on these dispatches, the Press of Demerara says there need be no hesitation in giving an affirmative answer to Minister Chamberlain. Interviews were had with all the foreign consuls in British Guiana concerning the Venezuelan question. The French consul, Mr. Clark, and the Dutch consul, Mr. DeJonge, refused to commit themselves in their official capacities. The German consul, Mr. Weber, was very outspoken against the United States and in favor of the British position. England, he says, should insist on a final settlement on the lines it has laid down. Mr. Weber thinks the idea of any effective interference by America absurd.

WORKING AGAINST THE CANAL.

Railroads Said to Be Determined to Kill the Water Route.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 18.—During the past week there has been a more or less serious blockade of grain at this port, in bound vessels being delayed from three to four days before being able to unload at their elevators. The cause is said to be the determination of the railroads to shut the canal route out. Elevators having rail connections are filled to their utmost capacity, as are also canal elevators, although the latter are used only for storage purposes.

The situation has been aggravated by the arrival of a large number of grain laden vessels, which will not be able to reach their elevators before Monday or Tuesday. There is also a big grain fleet on its way down and present prospects are that with its arrival there will be the greatest blockade of grain laden vessels this port has ever seen.

After to-day the various insurance companies will not insure any grain shipped by canal, which will have the effect of giving the entire carrying business for the remainder of the season to the railroads. This is evidently what the railroads have had in view in causing the present blockade.

Twenty Passengers Drowned.

Gibraltar, Nov. 18.—Over twenty passengers from the Italian steamship Solferino were drowned by the swamping of one of the small boats. Twelve hundred emigrants from Genoa, Italy, bound for South America, were on board the steamship at the time. All were landed safely save the score or more in the single small boat. The Solferino went ashore near Ceuta. She was commanded by Capt. Caffero.

Big Fire at Sherman, Texas.

Sherman, Tex., Nov. 18.—This city was visited by a destructive fire yesterday. The Linz block, the finest in the city, was burned, resulting in a total loss of $100,000. There were eight offices of various kinds in the upper stories, elegantly fitted, all of which were destroyed.

POPULAR RELIGION AND WHAT IT MEANS

DR. HALSEY'S ENTERTAINING
SUNDAY SERMON TOPIC.

Gave the Answers Received from Local People of Whom the Question Was Asked—Rev. V. E. Southworth's Lecture—Union Meeting of Young People's Societies—Evangelistic Meetings To Continue.

Rev. Dr. Halsey discussed "the elements of a popular religion" Sunday night before a large congregation. There was great unanimity in the answers he had received, he said. To the declaration that a popular religion must be "a pleasant, palatable religion" he assented heartily, but disagreed just as emphatically to the statement that it "must not seriously interfere with human desires or dispositions and yet must insure souls against loss hereafter." He admitted that time brought changes and that the form of presentation of religious truth changed from day to day, but said that the essentials were today as they were in the beginning.

Rev. Mr. Southworth's Lecture. The question of immortality came under earnest consideration at All Souls church yesterday. Mr. Southworth presented a strictly scientific treatment of the subject, showing plainly that there is a point where knowledge terminates and only hope or guess-work or blind faith can carry us farther. He said:

"Who can penetrate that darkness by which the shadows of one mundane life are shrouded? Who has nerve enough to wring from the lips of possibility its unbroken secrets?"

"Victor Hugo was right: 'The man who meditates not lives in blindness, the man who meditates lives in darkness. The choice between blindness and darkness—that is all we have.'"

The Truths Which are Urgent. "For one, I choose to meditate. I refuse to close my eyes. I refuse to be deluded by unverified affirmations or denials. I am not blind, but honesty forces me to confess that it is dark. I see, but honesty forces me to confess that I do not see the end. I refuse to affirm or deny what I do not know.

"These are truths which are urgent. I insist upon them. Eternity must wait, for time is impatient. The urgent necessity is now. We ought to be absorbed in the present enlargement of one thought, in the present exercise of our divinely human function and in the present outreach of our sympathies. All eternity cannot atone for the loss of one day. Nothing is good for the hereafter which is not equally good now. He who neglects and wastes the present opportunities annuls eternity.

Best Things Always Best. "Truth, honesty, affection, progress, human liberty, manly virtue, conscience, the ideal are as much the best thing today as they will ever be. To live for these for one day is to be immortal. To live without these for all eternity is to be dead indeed. Let us live for the things that cannot die. Let us give our life to truth and love and personal integrity. Let us insist upon the cultivation and expansion of that divinity which makes glorious our humanity.

"We can determine the limits of our life—not as to whether it be long or short but as to whether it be high or low."

Good Citizenship Their Theme. B. F. Dunwiddie and A. E. Matheson made stirring talks to the local union of young people's societies Sunday evening. Mr. Matheson dealt with the abstract while Mr. Dunwiddie pointed out the numerous points where the honest enforcement of laws now in statute book could work improvement. The meeting was in charge of C. P. Biers.

The evangelistic meeting at the First M. E. church are daily gaining interest and power and give promise of lasting good to the religious interests of the city. Rev. B. K. Manston of Shopiere is rendering the pastor efficient aid and proves himself well qualified in every way for effective evangelistic work. He has consented to remain one or two weeks longer, preaching each evening except Saturday and conducting evangelistic meetings with the pastor. All christians are invited to attend.

SPIVAK WILL MAKE A FIGHT.

Says Other Dealers Violated the Law As Much as He Did.

John Spivak, who pleaded guilty and paid a $2 fine Saturday for obstructing the sidewalk with apple barrels, says the end has not yet been reached.

"I was only one man out of six who obstructed the walks," he said to a reporter. "When the police warned me I cleared my sidewalk and kept the fruit under cover for two days. Then I found that the others had never taken their apples in at all. They were cutting into my trade, for apples and that sort of stock must be displayed in order to sell. I told the officers this, and asked them to compel everybody to observe the same regulations. After two days more of one-sided competition I had my apples moved out in front. I was fined while none of the rest were molested. I am going to see why this was so."

NEED MORE TELEPHONE CABLES

Manager Willis Says Janesville's Business Is Growing Larger Every Day

Janesville is one of the best "telephone towns" in the state. The business has nearly doubled within the past two years. The management are wondering how they ever got along without the cables. But for them the city would be fairly alive with wires. The Milwaukee street cable carries 120 wires, while the Main street pipe-holders about fifty. Each wire is wrapped in paper and the whole lot twisted together like a large rope. The most important wire center in the city is at the corner of Milwaukee and North River streets, where, upon a single pole, 135 wires are brought together. If anything serious should happen to this one pole, the greater part of the entire telephone service would be cut off.

RIVER PIRATES MAKE A RAID

Charles Burgess' Boat Stolen Some Time Last Night

When Charles Burgess chained his boat to a landing near the Milwaukee street bridge Saturday he thought it was safe, for a good sized lock held it secure. But this morning it was missing along with a pair of oars, the lock having been broken. The police were notified and a search for the missing craft was begun.

TOBACCO WAR GOES INTO THE COURTS

JUDGE BENNETT TO HEAR ARGUMENTS TOMORROW.

Formal Demand Made on Treasurer Dillenbeck and Secretary Howard for Books and Money, and Credentials Committee Is Restrained from Preparing Their List.

Don't think for a minute the war in the Tobacco Grower's Association has ended. Formal demands on Treasurer Ezra Dillenbeck for the funds of the association and on Secretary George Howard for the books has been made by Attorney C. E. Pierce for the Fisher board of directors. It was refused and the case will be in court tomorrow.

The board elected by the Fisher factions after the other meeting adjourned last week has chosen officers and claimed the right to continue association affairs.

The anti-Fisher faction plan to elect a board of its own Wednesday. This their opponents expect to prevent by injunction. President Noyes and Treasurer Dillenbeck and Secretary Howard have been called upon to appear before Judge Bennett tomorrow and show cause why they should not turn over the books and moneys of the association. S. S. Lee, M. J. Aiken and George Luckner, the anti-Fisher credential committee, have also been called upon to take no action looking to the holding of a meeting. This is intended to block the adjourned meeting set for Wednesday.

Each faction in the association claims to represent a majority of the stock. E. M. Hyzer appears for the 1893-95 directory and Sutherland & Nolan and Smith & Pierce and Fethers, Jeffris & Fifeid represent various parties of the Fisher faction. The officers named by the Fisher stockholders are:

President—John Stockman. Secretary—M. H. Greene. Treasurer—Josepa Grundy.

The directors are said to be John Stockman, Charles O. Fisher, Christ Zuket, James Shuades, George Decker, Myron F. Green, Joseph Grundy, Chas. Yeomans and William H. Crow, but the list has not been made public officially as nothing definite is known.

TALKED OVER MILES OF WIRE

Richard Valentine Gives The Long Distance Telephone Line A Test.

"Hello Nashville!" called Richard Valentine as he stepped to the telephone in Valentine Brothers office.

The answer came back as clear and distinct as if Nashville was down near Beloit, instead of "way down in Tennessee."

It was the first test that the "long distance line" has had. The operator at Nashville called up the local office saying that a friend of Richard Valentine wanted to talk with him. Mr. Valentine was soon on hand and conversed with his friend for a half hour. The sound of the voice, although hundreds of miles away, could be very plainly heard.

BALLONE WILL CASE ARGUED The Janesville Man's Suit Now Rests With the Judge.

Whether or not Frank J. Ballone will break the will of Jacob Ballone will be known in a few days. The arguments were finished Saturday and Judge Carpenter of Madison took the case under advisement. He will not make known his decision for a number of days. Fethers, Jeffris & Fifeid represent the plaintiff.

It is said that Ballone was ill when his wife died and that he never recovered and at the time of his death, he was at the residence of his niece, where he was taken soon after his wife's death. By his will he left to an adopted son and three nieces and nephews of his wife $300 and the rest of his property, aggregating about $5,000 to the Catholic church at Baraboo. An adopted son, Frank Ballone of this city, seeks to break the will on the grounds that the testator was incompetent at the time he made it and also that he was induced to make it by improper and overpowering influence that prejudiced the testator against the adopted son.

LECTURE AT MILTON JUNCTION.

Mrs. Campbell Will Tell of the W. C. T. U. Work.

Milton Junction, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Vie H. Campbell of Evansville, state president of the W. C. T. U. will give a lecture at the Seven Day Baptist church, Wednesday evening, Nov. 20, under the auspices of The Kings Daughters, entitled "A Whole Life for Two." Admission fifteen cents. Israel Kelly went to Oshkosh Friday with a load of furniture from Coon & Shaw to Harry Thomas. Mrs. Hughes of Edgerton died at that place and was brought to this place for funeral services which were held at the Seven Day Baptist church. Mrs. Louisa Spaulding returned from a two weeks visit in Janesville Thursday. Coon & Shaw have sent sent goods direct from the factory to grace the elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. Belknap in Chicago. They can buy and sell just as good furniture as is made. The news comes from Fort Atkinson that Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barnes are the parents of a fine baby girl. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes resided here until a year ago. Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Hull gave a surprise party Friday evening in honor of their nephew Alfred Foot it being his birthday. John O'Connor of Albion, was in town one day the past week. Mrs. J. L. Shaw is some better. Rev. S. R. Wheeler, of Boulder, Col., will speak at the S. D. Baptist church Saturday night. Rev. Stephens has arranged with an evangelist of Chicago to hold a series of meetings in the M. E. church here, beginning next week. Mrs. Spry of Fort Atkinson, visited Mrs. D. F. Buten last Saturday. It seems that Stewart Chambers has invested in some more Milton Junction real estate. He must have confidence in the future of this town. He bought four acres and a half of the Burdick estate on the Clear Lake cad on the west side.

Importance of Healthy Blood.

Every drop of blood that circulates through the veins eventually becomes a solid particle of the body. Flesh, bone and muscle are merely solidified blood, and upon the quality of the blood depends the condition of the whole physical system. Unless the liquid material by which the human substance is renewed and sustained is pure and nutritious, it is impossible that the body can be healthy and strong. One of the most important properties of the human blood is its ability to purify itself. It is that of improving the condition of the vital fluid, when infected or impoverished. Acting directly and powerfully on the stomach, in which the manufacture of the blood is commenced, and upon the liver which secretes a fluid next in importance to the stream of life itself, this powerful vegetable tonic and diuretic has an immense indirect influence upon the circulation. Hence, the extraordinary cures wrought by the Bitters in cases of general debility, malarious fevers, rheumatism, biliousness, constipation, &c.

HARD TO HANDLE.

Giraffes Are Very Difficult Animals to Transport.

The latest living example of the giraffe that has so recently been added to the society's collection arrived in England during the exceptionally hard winter, and, although cooped up in a roughly built box, seemed at the end of its journey but little worse for it and a day after it had been in its house fed heartily and seemed perfectly well and sound, says Leisure Hours. It is a peculiarly handsome marked specimen, much darker in color than any that have previously been brought to this country. All that we have had have come from the northern part of Africa and are known as Nubian; this one comes from the south. When it first came it had on a headstall, with a rope halter. This, it was felt, it would be wise to take off and we happened to be present the morning it was done. On paper it seemed an easy thing to do—just take it off; but with a frisky and timid creature like the giraffe it was hard work for three strong men. First they had to get a rope around the leather headstall, then the moment that was done the creature pirouetted around and around and twisted the rope about its neck and legs so that the keepers were in the utmost alarm lest in its frantic struggles it should seriously damage itself. At last they unwound the rope and endeavored to pull the giraffe's high head down to such a level that they could get at it, but after a time, just as victory seemed certain, it suddenly slewed away, twisting the cord again and again around its neck. At last, however, they did succeed. One clever cut with a sharp knife and the whole headstall fell off and the creature bounded away with flying heels, much to the danger of the three men. Mr. Windhorn, the Cape farmer who caught and brought it over, described how he feared it would hardly live, as it was so thin and emaciated when he got it, but soon it took to feeding and got into better condition. He had a long ride after it and caught it with a lasso, which he is an adept at throwing.

It is curious how timid these creatures are about certain sounds. Noisy sounds, like a man walking with hobnail boots, it does not notice, but a lady coming in with hardly more sound than the mere rustling of her dress makes it start, with pricked ears and distended eyes. We remember well after the terrible explosion of gunpowder on a barge on the neighboring canal, asking the keeper of the giraffes of that day how they had taken it, and he said he was surprised how very little notice they took at all. They jumped to their feet, but almost at once lay down again when they found that nothing had happened. "But," he added, "if I was at night time to creep along that gallery in my socks quietly, they would be so scared that I believe they would dash themselves to bits." They fear the lurking foe and a big bang scares them less than a faint, rustling sound. They are in that very deerlike.

Thrust Upon Him.
Jones—Smith woke up the other morning and found himself famous.
Brown—I'm surprised to hear that. I never knew he amounted to anything.
Jones—He never did before.
Brown—What has happened then?
Jones—He found that his wife had eloped in the night.

WORK ON THE NEW RAILROAD.

Rails Enough on Hand To Lay a Part of the Road.

It is claimed that the proprietors of the new railroad from London to Cambridge are now dealing with solid facts instead of speculation. The grade between the towns has been repaired, culverts put in, and preparations completed for beginning track laying. Men are now busy grading up for the bridge at the creek at the north of Cambridge village. Enough rails lie at London for five or six miles of track, but more ties are needed before the rails can be laid as far as Cambridge.

From Now Until Spring
Overcoats and winter wraps will be in fashion. They can be discarded temporarily while traveling in the steam-heated trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. For solid comfort, for speed and for safety, no other line can compare with this great railway of the west.

An Enigmatical Bill of Fare.
For a dinner served on the dining cars of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, will be sent to any address on receipt of a two cent postage stamp. Apply to George H. Heafford, General Passenger Agent, Old Colony Building, Chicago, Ill.

Great Reduction in Time to California
Once more the Northwestern line has reduced the time of its transcontinental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. ## THIS DAY IN HISTORY

- 1777—Passage of the American forces on Delaware river by the British. Fort Lee, N. J., on the Hudson, opposite upper New York city, captured by the British.
- 1785—Sir David Wilkie, English painter, born; died 1841.
- 1804—Philip John Schuyler, American soldier, died in Albany; born 1733.
- 1821—George Law, American capitalist and promoter, died in New York city; born 1806. Law built the High Bridge aqueduct and also developed steamship lines to California and Panama. He was interested in the Panama canal and railroad and built the Eighth avenue street railroad in New York city. During the Cuban war of 1848-52 he caused the Spanish captain general to back down in a threat to fire upon his vessel, the Crescent City, in the event of her appearing in Cuban waters. For this demonstration of backbone he was nicknamed "Live Oak George," and received the nomination of the American party for the presidency.
- 1883—Standard time adopted in states east of the Rocky mountains. Four standards adjusted to be an hour apart and to differ by exact hours from Greenwich were adopted. The divisions are eastern time, central time, Rocky mountain time and Pacific time, being respectively 75 degrees, 90 degrees, 105 degrees and 120 degrees west of Greenwich.
- 1886—Chester Alan Arthur, twenty-first president of the United States, died in New York city; born 1829.
- 1893—Rev. Charles F. Deems, pastor of the Church of the Strangers in New York city, died there; born 1820.

TIMES ARE IMPROVING.

A solid improvement in trade is manifest, when the country as a whole is considered. Bank clearings and railroad earnings both show a higher gain over last year in recent weeks than they did two or three months ago. The clearances of all the cities of the country which make them public are tabulated for October in the latest issue of the New York "Financial Chronicle," and they reveal a gain of 22.1 per cent. over those of the same towns in that month of 1894. The growth on the same basis of comparisons was 18.4 per cent. in September and 16.1 in August. Here is an improvement, relative and progressive as well as absolute, which is highly encouraging. Railroad earnings exhibit a like flattering rate of expansion. A downward movement in stocks has been under way for several weeks, but this has recently been checked, and there is ground for the hope that the turning point has been reached.

DOE AND THE MILL MEN.

Those paper mill men on the lower Fox do not thank General Doe as they ought. The general says that when he visited the Fox river valley he "advised the manufacturers to put in steam power; one or two have already accepted my advice and it seems remarkable that all have not done so."

As a matter of fact, says The Appleton Post heartlessly, at the time Gen. Joe was in the valley every mill had already ordered steam plants, many were running by steam, and today every plant on the river has steam or will have within a few days, instead of "one or two," as Gen. Joe in his exalted ignorance declares. Gen. Joe is a funny little fellow, and there is lots that he did not learn about the Fox river valley during his short stop in Appleton and his good time in Oshkosh.

COEN AND CASE.

A writer in the "Popular Science Monthly" says the Western farmer of fifty years ago, seldom received more than 20 cents a bushel for corn or 25 cents a bushel for wheat which does not look like an appreciation of gold at the expense of agricultural products. It might be added that the paper money the farmer handled fifty years ago was by no means equivalent to gold, and there was considerable risk in keeping much of it on hand over Sunday. It would not be easy to find a farmer willing to go back to the good old times.

Circulation increased $13,000,000 in the past month. Populists and silverites declare that more money is the one thing needed to give universal prosperity. Have we had $13,000,000 worth of additional prosperity in the last four weeks?

Henry Clay, Thomas H. Benton and Henry Winter Davis all of whom would be republicans were they alive today have reason to rise from their graves exultantly over the good sense their states have shown.

Rock county will pay no more Keeley bills without a fight. As for the police, they can get all the fight they want by tackling the men who need chloride of gold and don't get it.

People are getting very sick of having the United States represented at London by a man who disparages his own country. After next fall there will be a change.

If there is an extra session, a good many of the men who occupied seats in Madison last winter, ought to be persuaded to stay home.

Not in its woolliest dance-house days was Ashland as bad as it is today. A man has been found there who is not fit to be alderman.

Democrats are the only ones who criticize the Turner apportionment, which is pretty good proof of its fairness.

More anti-toxine and less pest house might be recommended for diphtheria patients in the future.

EMINENT TESTIMONY

Regarding the New Discovery for Curing Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

Dr. Hartzman, who has made many tests of the new dyspepsia cure, is very enthusiastic in his praise of this excellent preparation. It is not a secret patent medicine, but is composed of pure pepsin, bismuth, fruit salts and vegetable essences, made into pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges and sold by druggists at 50 Cents per package, under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dr. Hartzman states that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure dyspepsia and weak stomachs, because they possess the peculiar power of digesting whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach. They do not act on the bowels like cathartics, but act entirely on the food, digesting it thoroughly and quickly, giving the stomach a chance to rest and recover its natural strength, which it invariably will do after a course of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. If your druggist hasn't them in stock ask him to order a small quantity from his wholesaler.

GETTING THERE.

We have the largest stock of Woolens in Rock County—we have too many and fulls realizing the fact that but six weeks remain before the season closes—we propose to reduce our stock of Woolens if real low prices will do it. We have enjoyed an exceeding good trade since the first of August "Thanks" and have kept our tailors all busy and all of the time (in the shop not in the store). We are anxious to RUSH 'EM for the next six weeks, so we will make prices on Suits, Overcoats and Pants that will made them sell. First-class Suits, guaranteed all wool and reliable colors, $20 and upwards. Overcoats in Melton, Beaver, Shetland or Chinchilla, $25 and up. These goods are worth more but we have too many and prefer to cheapen now than later. You know us for veracity.

KNEFF & ALLEN

IT WORRIES SOME PEOPLE!

The storekeepers of Clothing are very much displeased with us because we insist on low prices. They say: Why don't you stop selling those All-Wool Men's Suits for $5 and $6.75? You know well enough there's no profit in such business. Now you're selling Overcoats at the same price.

To be frank with you, we are desirous of pleasing the numbers that crowd our store—that come with a purpose to save money. We've pleased them to such an extent that they not only come and come again but send everybody within their reach.

Today you'll find our store filled with your neighbors and with others who don't live within ten miles of you. They're all, like yourselves, investing their money where it fetches the best clothes. Now come along and choose your Winter Clothes. You'll be more interested in what your wages bring.

All-Wool Suits Will Go for $5.00.

Good, All-Wool Overcoats—Yes, $5.00. Great Storm Coats, $5.00.

There will be a crowd of Overcoats find new owners here today sure. Another crowd will secure $5 and $6.75 Men's Suits. Here, you're certain again of all wool. Always making, always selling—these $5 and $6.75 Men's Suits have no equal for value. Guaranteed just as fully as if we were getting $10 and $12 for them, like anybody else.

Boys' Clothes share same low prices. Big boy, $5; small boy, $2.50 up. We're artists in clothing boys.

VELEY'S DEATH DUE TO EATING CORN

FARMER CALLED UNDER PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCES.

While Husking the Cereal in the Field, He Ate Several Kernels, One of Which Caused His Demise—Funeral of Mrs. L. R. Treat—Other Mortuary Mention.

Emery Veley, a farmer living near the school for the blind, died at his home yesterday morning, his demise being due, supposedly, to eating corn while husking in the field.

Veley was taken sick a week ago, with a stomach trouble. He had been at work husking corn in the field, and ate some of the kernels. Violent vomiting spells followed, and a considerable quantity of corn passed off in that way. Janesville physicians were called to attend him but they found medical skill but of little use. Veley continued to grow worse, and at 8 o'clock yesterday morning death came to his relief. The physicians think his demise was due to apendicitis caused by eating the corn, but the relatives were opposed to holding a post mortem examination, so the cause of death is not definitely known.

Veley worked a small farm near the state school and leaves a wife. The couple were in poor circumstances, and Poormaster Kenyon went out to investigate the case this morning.

Funeral of Mrs. L. R. Treat.

All that was mortal of Mrs. Leslie R. Treat was laid to rest yesterday afternoon at Oak Hill. Funeral services were held from the house, conducted by the Rev. Victor E. Southworth, of All Souls church. The song service was rendered by a quartette composed of Mrs. C. L. Clark, Miss Hyde, William Garbutt and George G. Paris. The pall bearers were W. H. Greenman, S. S. Levey, C. B. Conrad, B. F. Dunwiddie, G. J. Davis and A. L. Kavalaga.

FLOWER SHOW IS A SUCCESS.

Chrysanthemums Attract Much Attention at the Linn Street Green House.

There are two lanes of chrysanthemums at the Linn street green house—two lanes and a houseful besides. St. Agnes Guild is treating its friends, through the courtesy of Misses Long & Hodson, to a very charming sight. The promises about chrysanthemums bigger than sunflowers have been fulfilled in the great blooms of the George Childs, Paderewski, Pitcher Manda, Queen, Vivand Morell, Ivory Mutual Friend, Golden Wedding and Eugene Daldouze. In the parlor through which visitors passed was a table spread immaculately, bright with silver and cut glass and adorned with Bridesmaid roses. The table was in part a reproduction of the decorative scheme that won the prize at the Chicago flower show. The display continues until tomorrow evening, and a large number of visitors are expected.

LITTLE TROUBLE OVER WALKS

Property Owners Profit By Commissioner Watson's Repeated Warnings.

Property owners took notice of the "side-walk warning" given them by Street Commissioner Watson.

"The recent inspection caused very little trouble," remarked the commissioner, "and it now looks as though the majority of walks throughout the city would be repaired before the cold spell sets in."

ALL WANT THE SCHOOL PICTURE

There Has Been a Rush All Day For Saturday Gazettes

THEE POLICE FOLLOW A CALF TRACK

BLUE-BLOODED BUT YOUTHFUL BOVINE IS MISSING.

Footprints Led to a Barn in the First Ward, and from There Wheelmarks Made a Bee Line to a Town of Porter Farm—The Case To Be Pushed.

The police put in most of Sunday morning following up calf tracks.

It was this way.

Saturday night between 11 and 12 o'clock some one entered the barn of Patrick McQuade on the river road and abstracted therefrom one blue-blooded and valuable calf.

Sunday morning Mr. McQuade reported to the police and search was begun. The streets being muddy the tracks of the calf were plainly followed to the Fourth avenue bridge and from there traced to a vacant barn on Clatham street.

Here the police discovered, what ho, wagon tracks. The officers also learned that two residents of the town of Porter had been in the city Saturday, and it is also said that they had stabled their horses in that same barn. By this time the police became somewhat interested in the said two men as McQuade said they had been trying to purchase the calf for some time.

They said nothing but this morning Officer Hogan and Mr. McQuade drove to the town of Porter where they discovered the calf tied to a tree in the woods, whereat the Porter men were greatly surprised. McQuade says he will push the case.

A WOMAN TRAMP.
She Has Visited Every Point of Interest in the Country.

A rather ordinary-looking woman sat in the office of Humane Agent Sherlock at Kansas City the other day. There was nothing in the woman's appearance to attract more than a passing look, yet she has had a record-breaking experience. Her name is Mrs. Georgie McRay, and she has tramped pretty much all over the United States—from Pennsylvania to Montana, and from the forests of Wisconsin to Oolagah, I. T. Mrs. McRay was born in Center county, Pennsylvania, about forty years ago apparently. Her father was a farmer, and she says that when she was a girl she did a man's work in the field. Early in life she manifested a desire to travel, and as she did not have the money to gratify her wishes she started out to make her way around the country without it. Dressing herself in man's attire, she started away from home, and since then has turned her sinewy hand to almost every kind of manual labor. At one time she worked with lumbermen in Arkansas. While thus employed she found no difficulty in swinging the woodman's ax, but the company she was forced to keep was terribly rough, and she only remained there a few days. Several people in Kansas City have known Mrs. McRay for years, and all agree that but for her unwomanly nomadic habits she would be an excellent member of the humble society to which she would naturally belong. None of her friends has ever heard anything disreputable laid to her charge, and Mrs. McRay herself speaks of this fact with pride. She is simply a female hobo, whose habit of tramping hither and thither has probably reached the chronic stage, and is now beyond cure. Her face has the peculiar leathery look common to those who are accustomed to facing all weathers, but anyone passing her on the street would at once put her down as the hard-working wife of a struggling farmer. Several years ago she appeared in Kansas City clad in male attire. She was arrested as a masquerader, but on promising to leave town was liberated. She had a similar experience in the little town of Coal Hill, Ark., but was sent to jail there. That same evening she broke out of the little lock-up, caught a train and before her absence was discovered was far on her way to Missouri. Agent Sherlock was much interested in the woman and gave her temporary relief. He also promised to aid her in getting employment of some sort. In reply to his query as to whether she intended to continue her present nomadic career, Mrs. McRay said:

"Why not? I like the life I am now leading, as it gives me a chance to see the country. I shall stay in Kansas City this winter and start out again in the spring."

THE ARMY OF TRAMPS.
A Failure in Our System of Correction and Reformation.

There can be no doubt that the tramp is, in a certain sense, the maker and chooser of his own career. The writer's experience with these vagrants has convinced him that, though they are almost always the victims of liquor and laziness, fully four-fifths of America's voluntary beggars have begun their wild and restless ways while still in their teens, and have been furthered in their wrong tendencies by unwise treatment applied to them when young. Year after year, even month after month, trampdom is increased by squads of youths, who will soon take and hold the places of their elders, who will naturally drop away with the years. These boyish roadsters are more often illegitimate than lawful children, and consequently proper subjects for State care and guardianship. And the fact that every tramp in the United States has spent some part of his youth in a reform school, or, worst of all, in jails, demonstrates that there is a failure somewhere in our system of correction and reformation, and makes it necessary and only fair that the sociologist as well as the reformer should know the tramp from boyhood to manhood. Superficial and unsympathetic studies of his character, with shallow theories about remedial measures, have so far failed signally in checking his malign influence upon society.

The Causes of Vagabondage.

The principal causes or sources of vagabondage, as I understand them, may be briefly recapitulated:

- I. The love of liquor.
  - II. Wanderlust—the love of wandering.
  - III. The county jail, owing to the promiscuous herding of boys and homeless wanderers with criminals.
  - IV. The tough and rough elements in villages and towns.
  - V. The comparatively innocent but misguided pupils of the reform school.
- Though not, properly speaking, a cause of vagabondage, the non-enforcement of law is its nursing mother, and misguided and misapplied charity its base of operations. The tramp evil is not so much a disease as a symptom of public ill-health. As such, and all the more because it is such, it deserves to be more thoroughly investigated, more reasonably apprehended, and more boldly treated.

Labor Degraded and Heresy Persecuted.

The fact that industry was in the hands put labor under a ban to Spanish feeling, and created a peculiar Spanish type of haughty superiority to work. In proportion as, from about 400 years before Columbus, the Moors were gradually subjected to Castile and Aragon, they were more and more a working class to Spanish masters, whose ideal was gain without labor. How far this went may be seen from the closing stage of the history.

IS A MONSTER BOOK.

It Is Said the Largest One in the World Is in the British Museum.

The Chinese department of the British Museum library contains, says a writer in Cassell's World of Wonders, a single work which occupies no fewer than 5,020 volumes. This wonderful production of the Chinese press was purchased a few years ago for $6,000, and is one of only a very small number of copies now in existence. It is an encyclopedia of the literature of China, covering a period of twenty-eight centuries—from 1000 B. C. to 1700 A. D.

It owes its origin to the literary proclivities of the Emperor Kang-he, who from 1662 to 1722. In the course of his studies of the ancient literature of his country Kang-he discovered that extensive corruptions had been allowed to creep into modern editions, and he conceived the idea of having the text of the originals reproduced and preserved in an authoritative form. This was a mighty conception, truly, and in its execution it remains unique down to the present time. For the purpose of carrying out the work Kang-he appointed a commission of learned men to select the writings to be reproduced, and employed the Jesuit missionaries to cast copper types with which to execute the printing. The commission was occupied for forty years in its great task. Before the work was completed Kang-he died, but he had provided that his successor should see the book completed, and he faithfully carried out his trust. The book is arranged in six divisions, each dealing with a particular branch of knowledge. The divisions are thus designated: First, writings relating to the heavens; second, writings relating to the earth; third, writings relating to mankind; fourth, writings relating to inanimate nature; fifth, writings relating to philosophy; sixth, writings relating to political economy.

DEAR BLACK HEAD.

Dear black head, will you go with me
Where the Tir na n'og shines mistily?
Climbing the mountains or sailing the sea,
Dear black head, will you go with me?

On seas uncharted though we set sail
I will not fail you when all things fail;
I'd drown light-hearted your love to be,
Dear black head, will you go with me?

Avourneen deilish. Your dear black head
Shall know no sorrow until I'm dead.
Your borrow in sorrow or shame I'll be,
Dear black head, if you go with me.

And till the Islands of Youth we find,
Oh, I'll be faithful and you'll be kind.
Your heart of gold shall my castle be,
Dear black head, if you'll go with me.

A PIECE OF SOAP.

It was about ten years ago, in the month of December. The day was cloudy and dull, and the wind was roaring among the oak trees. I was going to dine with Maitre le Bitouze, who in those days lived on the Haut Putois farm on the farther side of the Nehon moorlands.

The dinner was to be served at 6 o'clock. As I left the forest of Belle-Garde and took the little cross path that led to Monroe I heard the church bells in the valley striking 4.

As I went along the idea came to me to get shaved. It was quite a natural idea, for my beard was hurting me—the cold wind seems to bite an unshaved skin. My beard was eight days old, and there were to be other people at dinner, so I should be more presentable if shaved.

At the entrance of the village on the right hand side stood a picturesque little inn. The wind was rattling the leaves of the holly trees that stood in front of it. Inside I could hear the sound of loud voices. I went in, and ordering a glass of wine asked the host if there was a barber in the village.

"Parbleu oui!" cried an old peasant who was sitting with his feet in the stove and lighting his pipe with a fire-brand. "There is old Bridevent, who shaved the whole camp of Nehon during the war. If he is at home—and he ought to be, for as I passed the church just now I saw his dog Ronflot running down the street—he will do the trick for you first rate, and very quickly too!"

"And this Bridevent," said another peasant, who was stirring his cup of coffee at the end of the table, "evidently means to live and die here. I thought he went away to his vegetables and his cabbages in the country when the camp left Monroe. He comes from the neighborhood of Piron, doesn't he?"

"So he always says, yet he never goes much farther from his little shop than a rabbit does from its burrow."

"And how does he live? A little poaching on the sly and occasionally dressing a beard are not enough to fill the pot. Yet he does nothing else, so far as I can see."

"Bridevent is a sly one, Maitre le Hodey, and has put aside a little money. He used to keep a cantine, and has done other things than shave chins."

Satisfied with what I had heard, I asked the proprietor to show me Bridevent's house and left the inn. I found it, as he had described, a low, picturesque cottage, standing alone far back from the road, with its broad, sloping roof giving it a somewhat lugubrious appearance, not lessened by its lonely situation.

When I was within a few feet of the porch, which was partly concealed by low bushes, the door suddenly opened and a figure appeared.

It was that of a small man, a very small man, squat, dark, thickset, with long arms and tremendously bowed legs. The enormous head, which did not set straight on the massive shoulders, was covered with unkempt black hair. The neck was short and thick, and there was scarcely any forehead to be seen.

Add to this feature that had the appearance of having been crushed a large mouth with thick lips that drooped at one corner and two large gleaming black eyes, and you may have some idea of this singular individual.

My first thought on seeing this hideous apparition was to turn and retrace my steps or to go straight on past the house. But a second glance at the person showed me that he was properly dressed, and that it was his deformity chiefly that thus inspired the sensation of repugnance. So, suppressing my surprise, I addressed him in a voice that was almost gay:

"Eh bien, my friend, at this time of day, and with this kind of weather, I suppose trade with you is not booming. Do you think you can shave me before it gets too dark?"

"Come in, monsieur," he said simply. "I will do the best I can."

He went in first, to make room for me to pass, and pointed to a chair beside the fireplace. The interior of the cottage was very modest. Everything was clean and in its place. A high, old-fashioned bedstead stood in one corner, and in another a cupboard with deep shelves and several dozen plates with blue patterns painted on them.

A tall kitchen clock, a mirror, a table, several chairs and a kneading trough composed the rest of the furniture in the room. Two or three dingy looking pictures hung on the smoke stained walls.

From the rafters hung smoked hams, dried plants and sausages, long and black. In the corners stood fishing rods and fowling pieces, and two guns rested their long gleaming barrels against the mantelshelf.

"A little bit of fire is not so bad in this weather, hein. Is it, monsieur? I'll see to the stove while your water is boiling. It won't take long."

And as he stooped to throw a bundle of fagots into the stove I was amazed at the breadth of his shoulders and the enormous size of his hands. Without doubt this strange fellow was possessed of tremendous strength. He rose from his stooping position and went into a neighboring room, shutting the door carefully behind him. When he returned a few moments later, I heard a stealthy step going down the passage.

"Warm yourself, monsieur," he said to me again, placing a little stone jar filled with water, preparatory to shaving. "Don't fear to burn the wood. Wood is not expensive in the country. It only costs the trouble of gathering it."

Then he opened a cabinet and took out a pair of razors, which he began to strop conscientiously.

"Famous razors these, monsieur. This one especially is an English razor, which, if properly ground, could cut your neck through without spilling a drop of blood!"

This pleasantry I had often heard before, but from the lips of this strange individual it took on a peculiar character. There was a sound in his voice that made me shudder.

As I sat there poking up the smoldering embers of the fire the conversation of the peasants in the little inn came forcibly back to me. And the more I thought of it the less I felt reassured.

This fellow Bridevent did not belong to this part of the country. No one seemed to know where he came from. Beside his ostensible avocation of barber, which surely did not bring in enough to pay for the wood that burned in the great stove, no one knew of any other means of livelihood that he possessed.

And his manner, too, had roused my suspicions. Why had he gone into the other room and closed the door so cautiously behind him? And those steps I had heard, what were they?

Some one had doubtless been in that room whom he had thought it well to get out of the way. All manner of old tales of persons who had disappeared and left no trace behind, of mysterious assassinations at night in lonely houses, awoke to life in my mind until I began to feel that at any rate it was not prudent to help the murderer to his task by offering my throat unprotected to his razors.

From this moment I carefully watched every movement of my man. He walked up and down the room, ever stopping his famous razors and every few minutes stopping to listen.

Every time he passed the half open door I saw him look nervously out over the fields to the right and left.

Presently his step became more hurried and feverish, and his face betrayed marked impatience. He appeared uneasy, undecided. Was he hesitating?

"I began to feel very uncomfortable indeed and cast frequent glances at the door."

The darkness was coming on rapidly. The room was only lit up by the flickering light of the burning wood. Long ago the water in the stone jar had begun to boil. It had half boiled away and was nearly empty.

Evidently the man was trying to gain time! Perhaps waiting till the shadows of fast approaching night would aid him in his ghastly scheme.

Suddenly he placed the razors upon the edge of the table, looked into the steaming little stone jar, and without a word passed hurriedly into the next room. When he returned, a moment later, he found me standing up ready to brave the adventure to the point.

"All things considered," I began, looking him straight in the face, "I do not care to get shaved tonight. It is getting late, and I am expected to dinner. I will look in tomorrow morning. Here are 50 centimes for the operation. I pay in advance!"

But, without appearing to hear me—I think he was a little deaf—he ran to the door again, and putting his head out listened intently for several seconds.

In the distance I could hear the barking of a dog that was coming nearer and nearer. Suddenly a big dog sprang past his legs.

"Down, Ronflot, down!" he cried angrily.

Then a child came in out of breath, with her hair flying like leaves before a storm. She held something in her hand wrapped in paper.

"Give it here, quick!" cried Bridevent. "Monsieur has been waiting ever so long. Here, give it to me!"

It was a piece of soap!

I sat down again. All was in readiness. Bridevent shaved me, and I must honestly say that even if I was a good deal frightened I have never been better shaved in my life.—From the French.

What He Came For.

It came to pass, then, when Macallister McIlhenny preferred his simple request for her hand and heart, she respectfully but firmly declined, saying in that guileless, disingenuous, original way of hers that she would not be his wife, but would be a sister to him—oh, so gladly!—extending her lily white hand with a string tied to it.

That was only last night, and this night he had come to gather up the rich and costly presents he had given her, and she was sitting in the drawing room with her mother, when there came a pull at the doorknob, like the sluggish pull of a mud turtle at a frisky fishline.

"Who can that be?" asked the maiden's mother as she waited for the butler to respond to it.

"It is Macallister McIlhenny, mamma," replied the girl.

"What is he coming here tonight for?" I thought you gave him the box—excuse me, I mean rejected him last night."

"I did, mamma."

"Then what is he coming here tonight for?"

"I suppose, mamma," said the fair creature, gazing tenderly on a photograph of her fiancé, "that he wishes me to hold an inquest on him."

As Macallister McIlhenny entered the apartment there were tears in his eyes.

Sidney Smith's Sneeze.

"Who reads an American book?" the famous sneering utterance of Sidney Smith, was used in the Edinburgh Review of January, 1830. The article in which it occurs was the review of Adam Seybert's "Statistical Annals of the United States." At the time of its employment the Americans bitterly resented the covert sneer and with great energy defended their literature from the supposed attack.

EASY TO EAT FIRE.

Any One May Learn the Trick With a Little Practice.

The so-called fire-eating magicians have long plied their trade in defiance of all explanations of chemists and physicians. A clever prestidigitator, Mr. De Vere, described recently how the trick, for such it is, is done. It is very simple of practice, but it necessitates an apparatus which must be very carefully and neatly constructed. The fire-eaters usually give their performance on a raised platform, which hides the source of the fire, while it seems only to lift the operator a trifle higher from the floor of the scene, and it is ordinarily covered with a handsome red carpet.

It contains in the hollow space beneath it bags of rubber filled with ordinary illuminating gas and compressed by weights. The fire-eater has beneath the sole of his foot an ingenious apparatus ending in a tube, which fits exactly into another tube coming up through the platform from underneath, and forming a tight connection when he steps upon it; very fine rubber tubes, of the same color as the magician's dress, which is usually a diabolical scarlet red, run up along his body and along the arms to the furthest end of the index fingers; another tube runs around his neck and up under his chin, which is usually covered by a false beard, ending at his nether lip. When entering upon the stage all the lights are usually turned down to heighten the effect of the performance; the operator steps upon the platform, makes his connection, and after a sign that he is ready the gas is turned on from beneath. When he feels that it is beginning to escape from the tube at the end of his finger he lights it by means of a little push button, which is conveniently located near by, and sometimes even within his clothes on the inside of the cloak. The gas once burning he has it entirely under his control, to light or turn out any of the various jets he has previously arranged about his body. The jets on the fingers are controlled by pressure of the thumb upon the thin rubber tube; the gas jet on his lip is lighted by a motion of the hand, and he always turns up his face, opens his mouth, and pretends to blow the flame from his mouth. The appearance is very deceptive, indeed, as the breath blown from the lungs gives much life to the flame. As the scene is never light while the fire-eaters are at work, their secret has never before been discovered.

Quite a Different Matter. "Stop working that free-lunch counter," shouted the bartender. "It isn't work; it's a pleasure," replied Weary Willie.—Chicago Times-Herald.

YOUNG GIRLS.

INTERESTING CONCLUSIONS.

Mothers Agree on One Vital Subject. (SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.) Young girls, to the thinking mind, are ever subjects of the deepest interest.

Some lead lives of luxury, while others toil for mere existence. Separate, however, as their paths in life may lie, Nature demands of them the same obedience.

All are subject to the same physical laws, and suffer in proportion to their violation.

Young girls are reticent and often withhold what ought to be told.

Yet they are not to blame, for information on such subjects has been withheld from them, owing to the false interpretation of a mother's duty.

In such cases they should do as thousands of young ladies are doing every day: write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., giving as nearly as possible their symptoms, and receive her freely given advice and timely aid.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the young girl's most trustworthy friend. It can be obtained of any druggist, and speedily relieves and cures irregularities, suspension, retention, and all derangements of the womb and ovaries.

It banishes promptly all pains, headache, backache, faintness, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholia, etc. Young girls must know that self-preservation is the first law of nature.

Two New York Cloak houses

with Chicago offices where they displayed their entire sample lines being through with their season and not wanting to pay express charges on the garments to New York, offered them to us at a liberal discount and always on the lookout for snaps, we were right there and made the deal with both for the entire lines. These garments were made up to show to the best merchants in the west, and were made particularly well, not one but what is right in every way. They were never handled on the road, but have only been shown in Chicago and are therefore in better shape than would be the case with those made up now in the mid-season rush. They are in stock today and comprise many exclusive styles not seen heretofore in ladies' and misses' jackets, in boucles, chevots, kerseys; also plush and cloth capes and fur garments.

Don't buy a cloak of any kind until you look here where we positively guarantee to save you one-third.
